FANTASY FELLAS · SCOUTING REPORT · AFTER GAMEWEEK 10

Alex Imam Øde Toilette

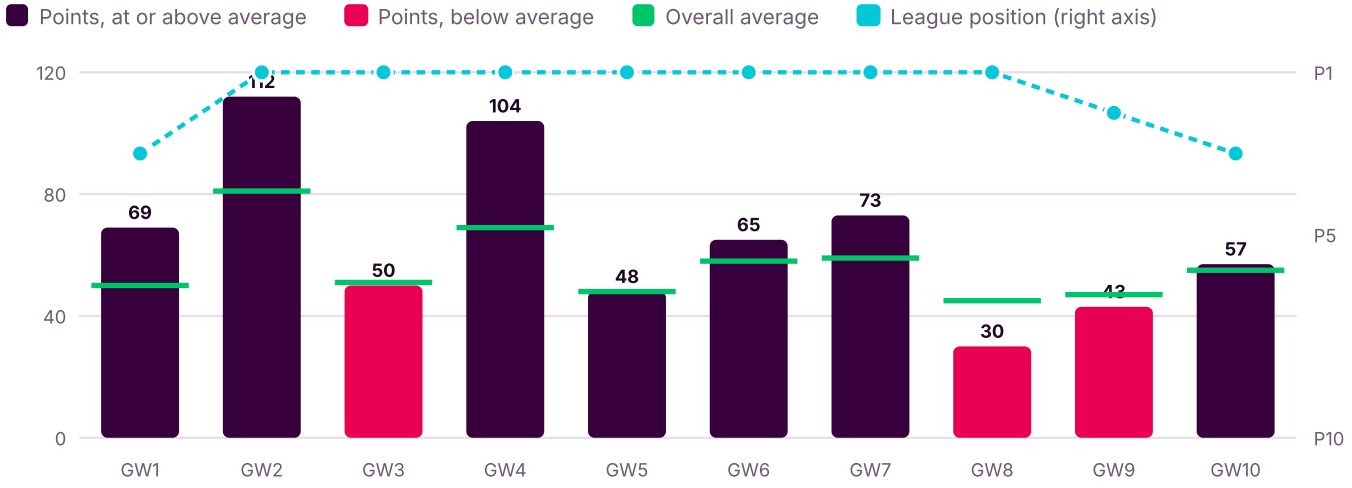

How the former league leader plays the game: what works, what leaks, and where he can still hurt us.

LEAGUE	OVERALL RANK	VS OVERALL AVERAGE	CHIPS LEFT
P3	1.09M	+80	WC · FH
643 pts · 36 behind Jason, 9 behind us	was 62,577 after GW4	+84 in GW1–4, −17 in GW8–10	BB in GW1, TC in GW3

WEEKS TOP OF LEAGUE	BEST WEEK	BENCH POINTS	MONEY IN THE BANK
7	112	119	£3.4m
GW2 to GW8	GW2, Bruno captain (46)	we left 37 on ours	team value £103.3m

In one line: a fast starter who built a lead with bold early calls (Bruno captaincy, a first-week Bench Boost, De Cuyper at £4.7m), then lost it from GW8 on through captain gambles, a wasted bench and £3.4m sitting idle. He still holds his Wildcard and Free Hit, so he is the rival with the most firepower left after Jason.

Ten weeks at a glance

The shape tells the story: four big weeks in the first month (69, 112, 104 and a Triple Captain week), top of the league from GW2 to GW8, then three weeks under or around the average (30, 43, 57) and down to third.

What he is good at, and what he is not

Good at

- Finding cheap defenders early. Shaw → De Cuyper (£4.7m) in GW3 is the best transfer in the league: +49 points over eight weeks. Bogle in GW8 added +12.
- Hits that pay. His GW8 double move (Aina → Bogle, Saka → Palmer) made +21 for a −4 hit. His GW4 hit roughly broke even (+5 for −4).
- Fast starts. +84 against the average in the first four weeks. A first-week Bench Boost (69) set it up.
- Growing team value. From £100.0m to £103.3m: he buys players before they rise.

Not good at

- Captain gambles. Leaving Haaland cost him −10 (Bruno, GW6) and −18 (Palmer, GW8). His two good gambles (+20, +6) only just cover it: overall −2 against always captaining Haaland.
- Picking his XI. 119 points left on the bench, 22 in GW6 and 21 in GW9 alone. That is the third highest in the league; we left 37.
- Patience. Cherki and Saka lasted one week, Semenyo two. Short-term moves lost him points twice (−5, −5).
- Using his money. £3.4m unspent: roughly the gap between a budget forward and a proven starter.

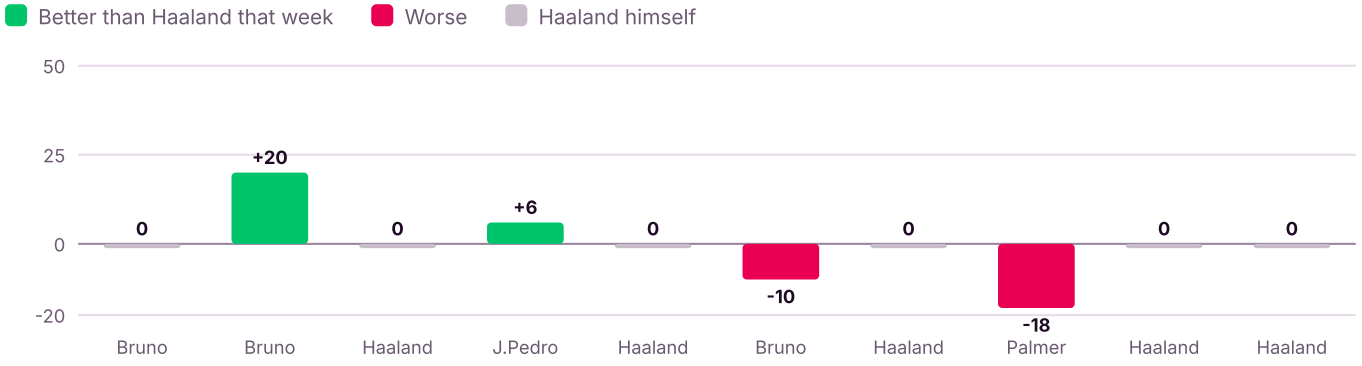

His biggest wins

WHEN	MOVE	GAIN
GW3	Shaw → De Cuyper	+49
GW2	Bruno captain (23 × 2)	+20 vs Haaland
GW8	Aina → Bogle, Saka → Palmer (−4 hit)	+17 net
GW1	Bench Boost	69 pts, +19 vs avg
GW4	João Pedro captain (12 × 2)	+6 vs Haaland

His biggest losses

WHEN	MOVE	COST
GW8	Palmer captain (−1 × 2)	−18 vs Haaland
GW6	Bruno captain (1 × 2)	−10 vs Haaland
GW3	Mbeumo → Cherki, sold a week later	−5
GW7	Ødegaard → Semenyo, sold after two weeks	−5
GW3	Triple Captain on Haaland (9)	only +9

Captaincy, week by week

Points won or lost against putting the armband on Haaland that week. He captained Haaland in 5 of 10 weeks (GW3 as Triple Captain); the five other picks won 26 and lost 28.

Gains for transfers: points of the player bought minus the player sold, over the weeks he was kept.

Where he can improve, and what it means for us

Where he can improve

- Captain on the favourite unless a differential is clearly better. His two failed gambles cost 28 points, more than the gap he now has to us.
- Start the right eleven. His 119 bench points are more than three times the 36 he trails Jason by.
- Spend the £3.4m. Ndiaye (£5.8m) and O'Shea (£4.0m) on his bench could become one strong starter.
- Hold players for three weeks before judging them. His one-week moves were his weakest.

What he must hold steady

- His defensive scouting: De Cuyper, Bogle, Calafiori and Raya give him a strong, cheap back line.
- Disciplined hits: only when two moves clearly beat −4, as in GW8.
- Value growth: £103.3m gives him the most room in the league for a Wildcard rebuild.
- A shared core with the leader: nine of his fifteen are also Jason's, so he does not drop further when the template scores.

His opportunities

- Wildcard and Free Hit still in hand. He can rebuild for the Christmas schedule and still Free Hit a blank or double week. Jason has these too; we do not.
- Differentials to catch Jason. With nine players in common he can only gain on Jason through the other six. Expect bolder picks.
- Cash plus team value. £3.4m and the highest value means a Wildcard could fit Haaland, Palmer and another premium.
- Fixtures. Bournemouth (Tavernier, Evanilson) have NFO, BHA and HUL at home in the next four weeks.

What it means for us

- He is 9 behind us with two chips more. His Wildcard week is the week to watch: if he plays it into a good run of fixtures, he can pass us in one or two weeks.
- Shared players cancel out. We share five (Haaland, De Cuyper, Groß, Tavernier, Bogle). Our points on him come from Isak, Mbeumo, Ødegaard, Barry and our Leeds/Brighton defenders.
- His threats to us: Palmer, Rogers, Evanilson, Calvert-Lewin and Raya, which none of our fifteen cover.
- Captaincy: he picked Haaland in 5 of 10 weeks. When he deviates he usually loses, so a shield captain against him is cheap.

His squad now (GW10)

POS	STARTING XI	BENCH
GK	Raya (ARS)	Verbruggen (BHA)
DEF	De Cuyper* (BHA) · Calafiori (ARS) · Bogle* (LEE)	Egan (HUL) · O'Shea (IPS)
MID	Rogers (CHE) · Tavernier* (BOU) · Palmer (CHE) · Groß* (BHA)	Ndiaye (MCI)
FWD	Haaland* (MCI) · Calvert-Lewin (LEE) · Evanilson (BOU)

* also in our squad. Bank £3.4m.